CHICAGO DERMATOLOGICAL SOCIETY

SPRING 2008: VOL. XVII, ISSUE 2

CDS APRIL MEETING AND DINNER

The Chicago Dermatological Society had its April 2008 meeting on Saturday April 12. The academic session was a seminar on medical-legal issues held in the afternoon at Northwestern University. David Lorber, M.D. opened the seminar with "The Malpractice Climate in Dermatology." Abel Torres, M.D., J.D. presented "Medical Dermatology, The State of the Art." This presentation was very informative and was followed by many questions from the audience. Joan Guitart, M.D. then discussed some medical-legal issues in dermatopathology. Finally David Lorber, M.D. and David Donnersberger, M.D., J.D. conducted three "Mock Depositions" regarding hypothetical cases. Everyone who attended the seminar was stimulated by the topic and the presentations. The Society wishes to thank our current Vice-President, Mark Hoffman, M.D. who was instrumental in organizing the entire afternoon.

On Saturday night, there was a cocktail reception followed by dinner at Spiaggia's restaurant on Michigan Avenue. The Society honored five previous departmental chairman: Sidney Barsky, M.D. (Cook County), Alan Lorincz, M.D. (University of Chicago), Fred Malkinson, M.D. (Rush), Henry Roenigk, M.D. (Northwestern University), and Lawrence Solomon, M.D. (University of Illinois). William Caro, M.D. was also honored. Society President Joan Guitart, M.D., served as the master of ceremonies. Each of the honorees was toasted (or roasted) and presented with a framed personalized caricature. There was an inscription on the caricatures thanking each honoree for their teaching and overall contributions to dermatology. The evening was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone who attended. The Society wishes to thank Marjorie Rosenbaum, M.D., Mark Gendleman, M.D., and Joan Guitart, M.D. for a memorable evening.

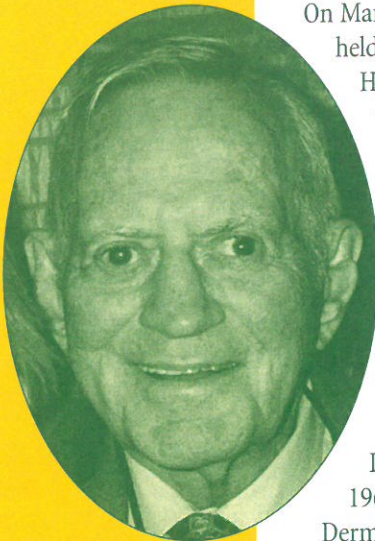

THE YEAR IN REVIEW

This has been an amazing year for our Society. We have had great meetings with dynamic lecturers, outstanding case presentations and wonderful discussions. I can't believe the year is over! I would like to thank all the residents and fellows for their priceless time and effort in preparing and presenting the cases. I want to thank the patients who generously shared their skin conditions with us. I also want to thank all the members of our Society and Cook County Hospital alumni who have made possible the Barsky Endowed Lectureship. I want to thank Rich Paul and his team for running a tight ship. I want to thank Drs. Mark Hoffman and David Lorber for organizing and moderating the medico-legal April meeting. Very special thanks go to Drs. Margie Rosenbaum and Mark Gendleman for their help and encouragement in the arrangements for the April banquet. This was a magnificent evening with music, entertainment, great food and, most important, a few endearing words of appreciation to some of our former academic leaders. Finally, I am indebted to the CDS leadership for the opportunity to serve as President of this outstanding Society. This has been one of my most exciting experiences. I am proud to have had the opportunity to serve as the president of the CDS for this academic year.

Joan Guitart, M.D.

SIDNEY BARSKY, M.D. LECTURESHIP

On March 19, 2008, the Chicago Dermatological Society held the inaugural Sidney Barsky Lecture at the John H. Stroger, Jr. Hospital of Cook County. The lecture was given by Dr. A. Bernard Ackerman. Chicago Dermatological Society President Dr. Joan Guitart was instrumental in creating the inaugural Sidney Barsky Lecture, along with the help of many Chicago Dermatological Society members, friends of Dr. Barsky and former residents of Cook County. Dr. Guitart recalled "being most impressed with Sid's devotion and dedication to our profession." Dr. Barsky has been associated with the Cook County Department of Dermatology for over 60 years. In 1967 he became the chairman of the Division of Dermatology where he remained for 18 years. He has trained hundreds of residents over those years.

Dr. Barsky was introduced by Dr. Darryl Bronson, his successor as Chairman of the Division of Dermatology at Cook County. Darryl reviewed Sid's history at County and his own personal relationship, gratitude, and personal anecdotes of their relationship over the years. He recalled an incident where Dr. Barsky made a diagnosis standing in the hallway and smelling the "mousy odor of pemphigus;" a testimonial to his clinical expertise. Dr. Gary Barsky spoke about Sid. He thanked his father for all the guidance over the years and for being a wonderful role model. Dr. Bonnie Barsky, Sid's daughter, then gave her personal memories of her father. She recalled how Sid influenced her to become a resident at Cook County Hospital and how he wanted the opportunity to impart his enthusiasm and knowledge to her. She especially valued his teaching her how to develop compassion for patients.

Dr. Ackerman was introduced by Dr. Bruce Bennin. Dr. Ackerman is director emeritus of the Ackerman Academy or Dermatopathology and has contributed enormously to the field of dermatology and dermatopathology. He is also a friend of Dr. Barsky and looked forward to participating in this special day for Sid. Dr. Ackerman began by giving a presentation on the life of Sidney Barsky, both personal and academic. The lecture that followed was titled "Responsibility of Collegiality." The lecture was both stimulating and controversial.

On a personal note, there are a few things about how I personally feel about Dr. Barsky. I relate them with some thoughts and anecdotes.

a. When I was in college, one of my professors was Nicholas Nyradi who was the finance minister of Hungary during World War II. He said many times that the inscription over the entrance of the Royal Hungarian Academy said "We learn not for the sake of learning but for the sake of life." Dr. Barsky always focused on the application of his knowledge for the sake of the patient and for the sake of life.

b. He has what I call the 'joie de derm' where Sid could look at normal skin and find something interesting on it.

It was a memorable day for Sid, who was deeply touched and honored by this special day dedicated to his accomplishments. This Barsky Lectureship will enable his values to live on long into the future.

Bruce Bennin, M.D.

SIDNEY BARSKY, M.D.

I was born on July 3, 1918, on the West Side of Chicago, grew up in Maywood, Illinois, and attended the local public schools, graduating from Proviso Township High School in 1935.

It had always been my dream to become a physician after witnessing the activities of our local family physicians who cared for members of my family. I entered Northern Illinois College of Optometry in 1936. After one year there, my parents offered me the opportunity to fulfill my dream and I entered pre-med school in 1937 at Central YMCA College in Chicago. One year later, I transferred to the University of Illinois in Champaign. I graduated from the University of Illinois Medical School in December, 1943 and interned at the Cook County Hospital in 1944.

From October, 1944 to October, 1946, I served as a medical officer in the U.S. Army. Although assigned as a psychiatrist to the 233rd Army General Hospital on Oahu, Hawaii, I had the good fortune to become associated with Dr. Tibor Benedek, a world-renowned dermatologist-mycologist who set up a derm clinic while the troops were waiting to be shipped to Okinawa, Japan. That's when I truly fell in love with dermatology. While on Okinawa, I met Dr. Harvey Blank who further inspired me. After Okinawa, I spent four months in Korea and had experience with a smallpox epidemic among our troops. Upon returning to the States, I was assigned to the National Headquarters of the Selective Service System in Washington, D.C. and transferred to Chicago as its Regional Medical Director of Illinois, Michigan, and Wisconsin.

Following discharge from the Army in November, 1946, I returned to the Cook County Hospital to begin a fellowship in dermatology at the Cook County Hospital Graduate School of Medicine. In October, 1950, I began my private practice in Maywood. I joined the dermatology staff at Rush as a clinical instructor in 1951, and transferred to the University of Illinois. Through the years until I resigned my position at Illinois in January,

MARC E. BODDICKER, M.D.

Dr. Marc Boddicker grew up in Cedar Rapids, Iowa. He went to the University of Iowa for both his undergraduate and medical school education. After internship at the La Crosse Lutheran hospital in La Crosse, Wisconsin, he went back to the University of Iowa for his fellowship in dermatology.

From 1984 until 1999 he practiced at the Rapid City Medical Center in Rapid City South Dakota, doing both general and surgical dermatology. From 1999 until the present, he has been in practice at the Advanced Dermatology Center in Rapid City.

Dr. Boddicker is an attending dermatologist at Cook County Hospital here in Chicago, as well as a clinical professor at the University of Iowa, Department of Dermatology. He established an outreach program at the dermatology training program in Lima, Peru to encourage the growth of surgical dermatology, including Mohs surgery. Marc spends his free time flying and working as a flight instructor. He works part-time for the Sheriff's office in Rapid City. More recently he has accepted a part-time position as a Reserve Special Agent with the South Dakota Division of Criminal Investigation to work with the Cold Case Homicide Unit.

He has been married to his wife, Sheila O'Day-Boddicker, for over 30 years. They have a son, Joseph (age 26) who will be starting law school at Arizona State University in August; Elizabeth (age 23) who will be starting medical school at the University of Iowa in August; and Daniel (age 20) who is a sophomore at Northwestern University in Evanston, Illinois.

KELLY L. BURKERT, M.D.

Dr. Kelly Burkert obtained her undergraduate degree from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. She received her doctorate in medicine from Jefferson Medical College in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. She completed her internship at Albert Einstein Medical Center in Philadelphia and her dermatology residency at the Mayo Clinic in Jacksonville, Florida. Kelly is in private practice with the Dermatology Limited Group, with offices in Naperville and Morris, Illinois. She lives in Chicago with her husband, Dr. Jared Hossack, who is completing his gastroenterology fellowship at the University of Chicago. In their free time they have been training their newly adopted dog, Monty.

STEVEN B. DELIDUKA, M.D.

Dr. Steven Deliduka attended the University of Vermont for college and Penn State University College of Medicine for medical school. He completed his dermatology fellowship at the Mayo Clinic in Jacksonville, Florida. Steven is in private practice at the Elmhurst Clinic in Elmhurst, Illinois.

JEFFREY T.S. HSU, M.D.

Dr. Jeffrey T.S. Hsu was born in Taiwan, China and moved to the United States at the age of ten. He spent his childhood growing up in the states of Oregon and Washington. Dr. Hsu graduated from Stanford University where he earned the coveted President's Award for academic achievement. He received his medical degree from the University of California at Los Angeles. He then completed an internship in internal medicine and residency in dermatology at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minnesota. He obtained further training by completing a laser and cosmetic surgery fellowship at SkinCare

Physicians in Chestnut Hill, Massachusetts under the direction of faculty from Harvard University and Yale University School of Medicine.

After practicing in Boston for several years, he's become a Red Sox fan. Since his move to Chicago, he is learning to love the Chicago Cubs. He loves life here in our city, especially the culinary adventures! Dr. Hsu has expertise in laser surgery, sclerotherapy, phlebectomy, soft-tissue augmentation with fillers, and cosmetic surgery. He is affiliated with Edward Hospital and practices with Dr. Ashish Bhatia in Naperville.

MEREDITH (STEWART) REIMER, M.D.

Dr. Meredith (Stewart) Reimer is originally from Cleveland, Ohio. She graduated from Northwestern University majoring in biomedical engineering. She then moved back to Ohio to attend medical school at Ohio State University. Meredith completed her residency training at John H. Stroger Hospital of Cook County in 2007. She has joined Drs. Mark Allen Berk and Carla Sanchez-Palacios at the Skin Care Center with offices in Chicago and Glenview, Illinois. Meredith lives in the Wicker Park neighborhood of Chicago with her husband Seth and their 16 month-old son Ethan.

ELLA L. TOOMBS, M.D.

Dr. Ella L. Toombs was born and grew up on the south side of Chicago where she attended parochial schools, married her husband Bedford, and had a daughter Andito. She obtained her undergraduate degree in biology from Chicago State University. Following college, she moved to Dayton, Ohio on assignment to the Upjohn Company. Eighteen months later she entered medical school at Ohio State University. She completed an internship at the Medical College of Georgia. After internship, she completed an internal medicine residency at The Cleveland Clinic, a dermatology residency at Howard University, and a clinical research dermatology fellowship at The National Institutes of Health.

She opened a private dermatology practice in Washington, D.C. specializing in cosmetic dermatology. She has a particular interest in liposuction in men. Ella has served as a dermatology medical officer, and as a Director for the Food and Drug Administration where she was responsible for oversight in the approval/regulation of BOTOX, Renova, Lamisil, Dovonex, Ortho Tri-cyclen, alpha-hydroxy acids, fillers, hydroquinone and others. Currently at Rush University Medical Center, she serves as Director of the Ethnic Skin and Hair Clinic. Dr. Toombs has guest-edited journals and published articles dedicated to the skin of "richly pigmented people." The accomplishment of which she is most proud of is her participation in efforts to increase scholarship funding for minority graduate students.

HEATHER W. WICKLESS, M.D., M.P.H.

Dr. Heather W. Wickless received her medical degree from the University of Texas Health Science Center at San Antonio, Texas. She completed an internship in internal medicine as well as her dermatology residency at the University of Texas in San Antonio. Prior to medical school, Dr. Wickless received her Masters of Public Health at the University of Texas Health Science Center in Houston, Texas. Dr. Wickless has an interest in general medical dermatology, with a special focus on hair loss disorders. Heather's undergraduate degree was in fine arts and she enjoys painting, cooking, and travel. She has joined the dermatology department at Northwestern University.

TAMPER-RESISTANT PRESCRIPTION PADS

The Department of Healthcare and Family Services (HFS) has made changes in compliance with a new federal law regarding Medicaid prescriptions. A recent change in federal law, included in section 7002(b) of the U.S. Troop Readiness, Veterans' Care, Katrina Recovery, and Iraq Accountability Appropriations Act of 2007, requires that all non-electronic Medicaid prescriptions be written on tamper-resistant prescription pads effective April 1, 2008. On October 1, 2008, the same requirement will apply to all Medicare prescriptions. It is HFS' intent to implement this new provision while ensuring the least disruption for prescribers, pharmacies, and patients. HFS' primary concerns are to ensure that patient care is not disrupted, and that the requirement does not cause a significant burden for providers.

Ordinary-paper prescriptions are easy to alter and counterfeit. Those who'd like to use your name to prescribe for themselves might, for instance, simply take one of your prescriptions and make a color photocopy, using a chemical such as acetone to dissolve your handwriting. Then they can simply write prescriptions for any drug they want, forging your name. But tamper-resistant pads foil such efforts. Special watermarks containing the word "VOID," unseen in the genuine article, would be activated by acetone and other chemicals, or by photocopying.

Key points of this requirement include:

- The requirement does not apply to electronic prescriptions. An electronic prescription is one that is transmitted from the prescriber to the pharmacy via telephone, telefacsimile, electronic prescribing (e-prescribing) mechanism, or other means of electronic transmission. The Department strongly encourages providers to use an electronic method to transmit prescriptions to pharmacies.
- The federal requirement applies to all prescriptions billed to Medicaid, regardless of whether Medicaid is the primary or secondary payor.
- The requirement applies to all prescribers, not just physicians.
- The requirement does not apply to refills or renewals of prescriptions existing at the pharmacy prior to October 1, 2007.
- If a patient presents a prescription that is not written on a tamper-resistant prescription pad, and the pharmacist, in his or her professional judgment, determines that not filling the prescription poses a health risk to the patient, the pharmacist may fill the prescription. In such cases, the federal Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) requires that the pharmacist obtain a verbal, faxed, electronic, or 1986, I advanced to the rank of clinical professor of dermatology. From March, 1967 until the end of 1985, I was Chairman of the Division of Dermatology at the Cook County Hospital. In June, 1986 until March, 1988, Doctor Ruth Barsky and I set up a private practice in Israel. Returning to the States, I took up a position as consultant dermatologist at the Cook County Hospital, which I now continue to hold and thoroughly enjoy.

I do have a somewhat alternate career as a musician, starting with bands and orchestras in grade school, high school, and at the University of Illinois. This provided me with great pleasure, some financial returns, and lifelong enjoyment. Jazz has been my thing – first the clarinet, then the saxophone, and now the piano. In 1973, my presidential address to the Chicago Dermatological Society (the first non-dermatology-related speech) was "The History of Jazz."

I am most proud of my children, Bonnie and Gary, and my nephew, Paul Getz, who all became successful dermatologists in the Chicago area. I also wish to acknowledge my great teachers, colleagues, and my parents who contributed unselfishly to my development. I am glad to have been given an opportunity to return some of these gifts. During my long career in dermatology, I have been involved with the training of many residents now scattered over the entire United States.

I have always appreciated and been grateful to our Chicago Dermatological Society for what it has offered me and allowing me to be its treasurer, secretary, and then president. In 1976 I was given the Clark Finnerud Award. In 2002, I was awarded the CDS Gold Medal Award. I was happy beyond words, being held in such esteem by my colleagues. I plan to continue with my activities to the best of my abilities.

CORPORATE SPONSORSHIP

The Chicago Dermatological Society's mission statement says this is a Society whose purpose is the study of dermatology and the cultivation of a fraternal spirit among its members. The world has become a more complex and expensive place. We pay the participating medical schools rent for the meetings rooms, as well as the use of the microscopes, meals etc. Having raised the membership fees significantly only a few years ago, we didn't feel this was the only option. We have adopted a policy on allowing corporate sponsorship in the way of unrestricted educational grants. Our current policy is as follows:

Exhibitor – $1500; Sponsor – $6000; Platinum sponsor – $10,000 (one time only, exclusively for the May meeting)

We hope that it allows us to continue to put on the high quality meetings that we are used to.

All of the following dermatologists have been approved by our Society for membership:

*Neda Ashourian, M.D.
Marc E. Boddicker, M.D.
Kelly L. Burkert, M.D.
Steven B. Deliduka, M.D.
Samantha Golden-Stoler, M.D.
Jeffrey T.S. Hsu, M.D.
Rany Jazayerli, M.D.
Meredith (Stewart) Reimer, M.D.
Ella L. Toombs, M.D.
Heather W. Wickless, M.D., M.P.H.*

I grew up in Louisville, Kentucky. I went to college at the University of Cincinnati and then to the University of Kentucky for medical school. In 1980 I moved to Chicago to do a residency in internal medicine at Michael Reese Hospital. My plan was to eventually return to Louisville and go into practice with my father, an internist. Neither of those things happened.

I met my wife Jane Kaplan at a New Year's party during my internship. We were married a year later on January 10, 1982. Jane is from Chicago and was very involved in a video production company. I was here to stay.

Along with changing my idea as to where I was going to live, I also changed my ideas about the kind of medicine I wanted to practice. I really did not like internal medicine. In retrospect, my lack of enthusiasm probably had something to do with how much I disliked being a medical resident. I also found myself obsessing too much about my sick patients. I started to think about doing something different.

Early in the second year of my internal medicine residency, I rotated with Dr. David Fretzin and a young dermatopathology resident, Dr. Darryl Bronson. Both men seemed to be very excited about their work and inspired me to give dermatology a try. A product of my association with these two doctors was the "landmark" report of a case of Woolly Hair Nevus.

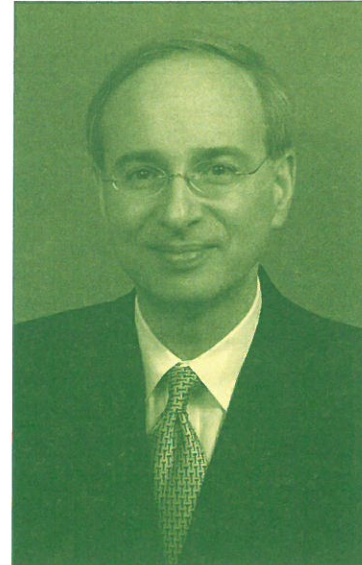

I was accepted as a dermatology resident at Cook County Hospital, under Dr. Sidney Barsky. After my residency, I stayed on staff at County for several more years with the new chairman, Darryl Bronson. While I was at County, I developed an interest in dermatological surgery as well as in wound healing. Eventually I began to cut back my time at County and built up a private practice. I initially practiced with Irving Distelheim in Chicago and in 1990 began my current solo practice in Skokie, Illinois.

I have to admit that my true ambition in life is to be an op-ed columnist. I am an avid reader of the op-ed page of the New York Times. My greatest writing achievement thus far was having an op-ed article published in the Los Angeles Times. Aside from my interest in the op-eds, I enjoy bicycling. During the winter I spin and run.

Jane and I have been married 27 years. Our son Jacob (24) is at Princeton and Yale doing a combined economics and law program. Our daughter Elise (20) is a junior at Macalester College in St. Paul, Minnesota.

A special thank you to the Chicago Dermatological Society for their graciousness in selecting me for this Award. I am humbled and honored to receive this Award since it allows me a unique opportunity to publicly thank and express my appreciation to so many individuals who have contributed thus far to my career. I have been very fortunate to have had many outstanding teachers for whom I am forever grateful.

I received my dermatology training at Northwestern University, after completing my medical degree from the same institution. I had the privilege to learn from the Chairman Dr. Henry Roenigk and the full-time attending staff, including Drs. William Caro, Nancy Esterly, Ruth Frienkel, Junji Hasegawa, June Robinson, and Charles Zugerman. Each had their own approach to the field, which was imparted to their residents. In addition, the excellent voluntary attendings – of which there were many – taught many valuable clinical lessons to us all.

An emphasis in the program was resident involvement in ongoing research projects. Developing an interest in photobiology and therapy early in my residency, I became intrigued with an allied study, cutaneous laser therapy. Since this area was only in its relative infancy, I had a wonderful opportunity to spend time away from the residency program and devote my efforts to laser research at the Wellman Laboratories in Massachusetts General Hospital under its head, Dr. John Parrish. This invaluable experience and mentorship allowed me to develop and expand my dermatologic study, placing an emphasis on laser biology, therapy, and research.

Other luminaries who have played a developmental role in my career, and for whom I remain indebted, are Drs. Ken Arndt and Joel Noe at Beth Israel in Boston, Phil Balin at the Cleveland Clinic. Leon Goldman at the Cincinnati Jewish Hospital, Leonard Cerullo at Northwestern and Leonard Grossweiner at the Illinois Institute of Technology. These mentors taught and gave me opportunities to learn both scientific and clinical approaches to laser medicine and inspired me to continue in their path.

compliant written prescription from the prescriber within 72 hours after the date on which the prescription was filled.

HFS will follow federal CMS guidelines with regard to the specific requirements for the prescription pads. A prescription pad must contain at least one of the following characteristics: 1) One or more industry-recognized features designed to prevent unauthorized copying of a completed or blank form; 2) One or more industry-recognized features designed to prevent the erasure or modification of information written on the prescription by the prescriber; 3) One or more industry-recognized features designed to prevent the use of counterfeit prescription forms.

Beginning October 1, 2008, federal CMS requires a prescription pad to contain all three of the characteristics listed above in order to be considered tamper-resistant. Again, the Department strongly encourages prescribers to use an electronic method to transmit their prescriptions to the pharmacy.

Further information on this policy, including a question and answer document, is available on the Department's web site at <http://www.hfs.illinois.gov/pharmacy/tamper.html>. Questions regarding this notice may be directed to the Bureau of Pharmacy Services at 1-877-782-5565, option 7.

There are so many others from the past who have played a role in my career and for whom I remain grateful. I have been fortunate to have many esteemed colleagues from this Society and from others from whom I have learned and continue to learn, especially Drs. Mary Massa, Dina Yaghmai and Abnoel Bakus, with whom I have the honor of practicing and doing research.

Throughout my career. I have had the remarkable opportunity to be associated with an outstanding teaching program: Northwestern University Department of Dermatology. This has allowed me ongoing contact with many wonderful residents. One cannot minimize the education we all receive from other residents not only during our own training but also from those with whom we have been associated as an attending. Teaching remains for me a self-growth process which is very gratifying. Also, from each patient I have had the privilege to treat, I have received and continue to receive an ongoing education. Finally, I have had the wonderful support of my wife and family.
